Behavioral Health vs Mental Health

- Behavioral Health is an umbrella term that involves the promotion of mental health, resilience and well-being; it includes treatment of both Mental Health and Addictions.*
- Mental Health is an individual's overall well-being in relation to their biology, their environment and how they interact with the world.
- Today we will be talking about Washington County's Mental Health programs and community services.

What is Washington County's role?

Core Functions of Community Mental Health Program

Mental Health Response Team

Now in its 11th year, this program pairs a trained crisis clinician with a Washington County Sheriff's Office deputy.

Provides direct collaboration between dedicated law enforcement officers and behavioral health professionals for the best outcomes in emergency situations.

Service to community members begins on patrol and includes assessment and engagement with a trained clinician with a goal of crisis resolution and connection to necessary resources.

Program is growing with a member from the Hillsboro Police Department joining the team and plans in the works to add members from Beaverton, King City, Tigard, and Tualatin Police Departments - making this team a truly multi-agency effort
