We'll learn more about the project to bring Willamette River Water to the Tualatin Valley. Construction has been underway since 2014 and the system is expected to be functional in early 2025. Existing water supply in the area is neither adequate for future needs nor is it resilient enough to survive an earthquake. Attend to learn the latest and learn more here: <https://www.ourreliablewater.org/program/>

The estimated $1.6 billion cost of the program is shared among many sources. Learn more here:
